

TIP 5

>> Tip number five.

Sign up for NTC courses, DOI learn offerings and other local training.

DOI learn is the BLM's catalog for courses and training.

The beauty about the DOI learn is not only do you have BLM courses listed in there, you also have DOI wide.

NTC ensures that our offerings are aligned to meet our customer base and accessible when needed.

Some of the ways we accomplish this are through curriculum advisory teams.

Curriculum advisory teams are a group of subject matter experts that help us out in our program areas as far as setting up the programmer work for the next few years.

We also have an excellent relationship with our state training officers.

Our state training officers have their pulse on the local needs and the local courses that are out there.

They are also very skilled in the use of DOI learn.

So if you are having any trouble with navigating through DOI learn, please contact your state training officer.

We also have a DOI learn help desk that can help you with your job-specific needs.

>> D. Charpio: Well, Leon, those curriculum advisory teams is another good way to get involved.

We would like one of the subject matter experts out there to help build our curriculums and by doing that, I think you will learn that there are a lot of folks out there that can help with your career if you just get involved in working with us on that.

>> L. Thomas: We wouldn't be able to effectively do our job without the work that our state officers and curriculum advisory teams do, and the national training effort.

>> D. Charpio: We formalized the state training officer program, and these people are doing this not as their full-time job, but they are doing it as a part-time job and they are doing a great job for us.

Any of you that are out there that don't know who that person is, you can go on our web site and find out or call Kim Chambers here at the National Training Center.

Or call your state representative and they can get you in touch with them.
