Colors on a printed product may differ from the colors shown above; colors may be affected by any combination of variables inherent to four-color process printing. These variables include, but are not limited to, film and plate registration, plate quality, type and weight of paper stock, different types of process color ink, printing press dot gain, print run color sequence, press color control, and pressmanship.